Sirs.

I brought a Roman coin down to the Museum on Sat. Nov. 9, at 4.30 p.m. to find out what its value was.

There was two men there at the time One took the coin and made an impression of it in wax. He said he could not say off hand what it was worth, but would let me know by mail if I would leave my address with him, which I did.

I haven't heard anything about it yet. So I'm taking the liberty to write now.

The Museum was being remodled at the time and its possible my address was lost.

If you would let me know what the value of it is it would be appreciated.

Yours truly

James Mahon

Dear Sir:

In reply to your note of the 13th, I remember your coin and that I took an impression of it, but things have only just begun to quieten down here and many needs have not yet received attention. Because your coin is rather worn, we doubt that any dealer would offer you more than ten dollars for it.

Yours very truly,

Secretary.
